Fulton Parkside: Mother's Memorial Garden

On February 24, 2011 the residents of Fulton Parkside took the first step in completing their ArtsinStark art project by painting decorative rocks for the Mother's Memorial Garden. These rocks will eventually line the walkway through the garden.

Long time residents, Larry and Janet Haldeman held the gathering at their home which is adjacent to the vacant lot where the garden will be placed later this year. Nearly 20 residents took part in the "rock painting party", where 84 rocks were painted in bold, vibrant colors. The paint was provided by local and long standing company, Harrison Paint.

Mrs. Haldeman has been waiting for a long time for this garden to be erected and was full of joy that it was, "...actually happening."

The next steps for the project include the completion of painting 200 additional rocks and the leveling of the land once the ground thaws. Fulton Parkside resident, Charlie Currence has offered to level the land, as well as any additional ground leveling residents may require.
